If YOU were there...

You are a teacher living in Massachusetts in the 1840s. Some of your neighbors have started an experimental community. They want to live more simply than present-day society allows. They hope to have time to write and think, while still sharing the work. Some people will teach; others will raise food. You think this might be an interesting place to live.

What would you ask the leaders of the community?

BUILDING BACKGROUND  Great changes were taking place in American culture. The early 1800s brought a revolution in American thought. Artists, writers, and philosophers pursued their ideals and developed truly American styles.

Transcendentalists

Some New England writers and philosophers found spiritual wisdom in transcendentalism, the belief that people could transcend, or rise above, material things in life. Transcendentalists also believed that people should depend on themselves and their own insights, rather than on outside authorities. Important transcendentalists included Ralph Waldo Emerson, Margaret Fuller, and Henry David Thoreau.

TAKING NOTES

Use the graphic organizer online to take notes on the new movements in art and literature.
Emerson was a popular writer and thinker who argued that Americans should disregard institutions and follow their own beliefs. “What I must do is all that concerns me, not what the people think,” he wrote in an essay called “Self-Reliance.” Fuller edited the famous transcendentalist publication The Dial. Thoreau advised even stronger self-reliance and simple living away from society in natural settings. He wrote his book Walden after living for two years at Walden Pond. He also wrote the essay Civil Disobedience after spending a night in jail. He had been arrested for refusing to pay a tax, in protest of the Mexican-American War and its role in the spread of slavery.

Some transcendentalists formed a community at Brook Farm, Massachusetts, in the 1840s. It was one of many experiments with utopian communities, groups of people who tried to form a perfect society. People in utopian communities pursued abstract spirituality and cooperative lifestyles. Communities sprang up in New Harmony, Oneida, and elsewhere. However, few lasted for long.

American Romanticism

Ideas about the simple life and nature also inspired painters and writers in the early and mid-1800s. Some joined the Romantic movement that had begun in Europe. Romanticism involved a great interest in nature, an emphasis on individual expression, and a rejection of many established rules. These painters and writers felt that each person brings a unique view to the world. They believed in using emotion to guide their creative output. Some Romantic artists, like Thomas Cole, painted the American landscape. Their works showed the beauty and wonder of nature in the United States. Their images contrasted with the huge cities and corruption of nature that many Americans saw as typical of Europe. American Romanticism allowed Americans to see themselves both as part of a European tradition of culture and as a new, unique culture.

Many female writers, like Ann Sophia Stephens, wrote historical fiction that was popular in the mid-1800s. New England writer Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote The Scarlet Letter during that period. One of the greatest classics of Romantic literature, it explored Puritan life in the 1600s. Hawthorne’s friend Herman Melville, a writer and former sailor, wrote novels about the sea, such as Moby-Dick and Billy Budd. Many people believe that Moby-Dick is one of the finest American novels ever written.

American Romantic authors also wrote a great deal of poetry. The poet Edgar Allan Poe, also a short story writer, became famous for a haunting poem called “The Raven.” Other gifted American poets included Emily Dickinson, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, and Walt Whitman. Most of Dickinson’s short, thoughtful poems were not published until after her death. Longfellow, the best-known poet of the mid-1800s, wrote popular story-poems, like The Song of Hiawatha. Whitman praised American individualism and democracy in his simple, unrhymed poetry. In his poetry collection Leaves of Grass, he wrote, “The United States themselves are essentially the greatest poem.”

Section 2 Assessment

Reviewing Ideas, Terms, and People

1. a. Identify What were the main teachings of transcendentalism?
   b. Describe Why was Henry David Thoreau arrested? What effect do you think his action had on the abolition movement?
   c. Summarize What was one utopian community established in the United States, and what was its goal?
   d. Elaborate Do you agree with transcendentalists that Americans put too much emphasis on institutions and traditions? Explain your answer.

2. a. Recall Who were some important American authors and poets at this time?
   b. Explain What ideas did artists in the Romantic movement express?
   c. Evaluate Do you think the Romantic movement was important to American culture? Explain.

Critical Thinking

3. Comparing and Contrasting Review your notes on art and literature. Then copy the graphic organizer below and use it to show the similarities and differences between the two movements.
